COUNTRY CLUB IS CLOSED AT 300

Seventy new members were obtained. According to the records, this closes the stockholding membership, which totals 300. It is possible that there may be a small shrinkage, in which event a limited number of stockholding memberships will be available.

Although no action was taken, the sentiment among the members of the board of governors is strongly in favor of advancing the association membership entrance fee from $150, the figure at which stockholding members have been admitted, to either $250 or $300.

The board voted to proceed with the erection of an addition to the clubhouse which will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000. A committee composed of T. W. Dawson, E. A. Byrne and W. D. McGinnis was given full charge of this work, which will be started immediately. It is probable that the larger social gatherings at the club will be held in advance until the new addition is completed.

China and America
Come to Agreement
In Coldman Death

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 28.—American Minister Schurman at Peking has reached an agreement with the Chinese foreign office for settlement of the Coldman case involving the death of Charles Coldman, an American, at the hands of Chinese sentries at the gates of Peking.

The agreement provides for an apology from the Chinese and the province of Peking, the immediate removal from office of the chief of staff, the chief adjutant and the adjutants who were in command of the offending troops and the payment to Coldman's heirs of an indemnity to be fixed by the American government.

The result will be to remove a cause of friction which has severely strained relations between Washington and Peking. The Optimist and His Dollar

ONE of the traits of the average American that is hard to explain is that he will go on risking his money in enterprises that have nothing but a "future" when there are so many established businesses, with fine records behind them, presenting splendid investment opportunities. Perhaps it is that the American is an incurable optimist. Surely optimism is carried to extremes when the American people continue to pour hundreds of millions each year into worthless promotions when they have almost constantly before them many glaring examples of fraud and deception.

In such a nation a house like the H. L. Beach Company occupies a unique position. Our policy is a complete antithesis to the methods of the Blue Sky stock promoter. His plan is to get as much as he can from the public and give little or nothing in return. Ours is to get as much as possible for our customers. Ours is a business of small profits, but all the profits are clean. What we sell to the public is good—it has to be before we will touch it. In our business there is a conscience, a goodwill value that must never be impaired.

It is a matter of record that every stock sold by the H. L. Beach Company is today held by the issuing companies at a price at least 25 per cent above par.

CIRCUS DAY NOW TOPIC FOR SMALL BOY AND GROWN-UP

It's the John Robinson Circus, and trained wild animals that's the topic of the hour for the boys and girls of six as well as those of sixty. The billboards, barns and walls are announcing with all the fluency of pictorial art its coming. And already preparations are being made for the one big holiday event of the year. About the time the milkman is making his rounds on the morning of Saturday, May 12 the first of the circus trains will be pulling into the railroad yards.
Much is promised by the management of the John Robinson Circus and trained wild animals this year. This is the 100th anniversary tour. The show has reached such a size that it is causing the railroad considerable uneasiness in handling the various trains. European and oriental representatives have sacked the continent and the Fair East in quest for novelties, and the question of safety was not considered when it concerned the engaging or performing of ability. The greatest collection of trained wild animals ever exhibited by any circus will appear in the huge steel arenas, and these new features will tend to eradicate the fallacy that "all circuses are alike."
The trained wild animals will be headed by John and Harriet Guilfoyle, noted English trainers and Miss Ola Darrach, famous American instructor, to savage beasts, while the three herds of elephants will be under the guidance of Chas. Gardener. The riding displays will be headed by such notable equestrians as the Rudynoff trio and the Horrie Griggs Trio. The famous Morales family of acrobats, aerialists and wire walkers—formerly featured with all the big circuses—will top the scores of stage and ring offerings. Fifty-one clowns, with their chuckles and howls of glee from the children and those of us who still cherish youth in our hearts.

The Home Garden

Cabbages From July to Thanksgiving

Young cabbage may be harvested in the garden from July until hard freezing, given a little care and planning in sowing seed and transplanting. The selection of proper varieties has much to do with success and the best quality of early cabbages must be secured from a seedman of known reliability and reputation. The cabbage needs plenty of room and the richest soil available. It needs plenty of moisture and also good drainage. The seedlings should be transplanted as soon as they have made two true leaves; if the ground isn't ready for them transplant them into a box or frame. They will be stockier for the second transplanting. When they are to be set into the ground, set the plants almost up to the true leaves. Long-leafed cabbage seldom make good heads. It is the squat, close to the ground growers that give the solid heads and prefer setting when the plants are transplanted has much to do with this feature.
The plants of early cabbage may be set out by April 15, over a large section of the country as they will stand quite a little frost without damage. The smaller growing, extra early sorts should be set two feet apart, in rows from 2 1/2 to 3 feet apart for best results. The Wakefield types are standard early cabbages. Nitrate of soda in spoonful quantities when the plants are set out, making the nitrate fine and not applying it too close to the plant and at from two to three weeks intervals during the growing season is a fine stimulus for firm, vigorous heads.
The cabbage worm is always present. Various insects will control this pest and any dealer can recommend an effective one. Those which are nonpoisonous are best in the home garden. They should be applied frequently to keep down the green worms. Arsenical poisons are more effective and may be used without fear in the early stages of growth.

First Use of Envelopes.
The first envelope of which there is any knowledge, enclosed a letter sent 250 years ago, by Sir William Turnbull to Sir James Ogilvie. The epistle dealt with English affairs of state, and, with its covering, is carefully preserved in the British Museum. At that period, and long afterward, it was the general custom to fold letters and seal them with waters of wax.
Early in the last century envelopes began to come into more general use and stamped adhesive envelopes achieved wide popularity in England shortly after the establishment of the penny post in 1840, and by 1850 were largely used on this side of the Atlantic. The first machine for the manufacture of envelopes was patented in 1844 by George Wilson, an Englishman, and improvements were made the following year by Warren De La Rue and W. Hill.

U. B. CHURCH RECEPTION

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 28.—David Bowers, 75 years old, one of the best-known residents of Mount Pleasant, died very suddenly at his home here yesterday. Mr. Bowers ate a very hearty breakfast and a little later said he did not feel well. Heart disease was the cause. Besides his wife he is survived by eight children: Charles of Duquesne, Roy at home, John of Columbus, Ohio, Ralph at Morgantown, Hattie of Pittsburgh, Ida, Glenn and Carl at home.

Reception for members of the United Brethren Church was held in the church social rooms last evening, with 150 persons in attendance. Music was furnished during the evening by the orchestra. Addresses were made by Mrs. M. A. King of the Ladies Aid Society, Mrs. J. D. Good of the Women's Missionary Society, Mrs. Viola Quiver Hyde of the Young People's Society, and Rev. J. D. Good representing every part of the church. The persons attending were divided into months of the year, and the persons whose birthdays come in a certain month were asked to sit in a circle. Refreshments were served by the Ladies Aid Society.

At the United Brethren Church on Sunday there will be Sunday school at 9:45 o'clock, preaching at 10:15 on "The Victorious Life," the second of series of sermons from Revelations. Junior Christian Endeavor at 2 o'clock; Senior Christian Endeavor at 6:45 o'clock. At the evening service at 7:30 o'clock the subject will be "Heroes and Cowards," with special music at both services.

Personal Mention.
Mrs. Sullenberger has returned home from Foxtown where she visited with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Rhoadman.

Mrs. Frank Grader and son Joseph, were at the Cottage State Hospital when Mrs. Grader's uncle, William Bent, who was run down by an automobile.

Among The Churches

FIRST UNITED PRESBYTERIAN—Where Morton crosses Pittsburgh. Francis J. Scott, minister. Bible school at 9:45 A. M. Dr. J. French Kerr, superintendent. The Bible school period will be one of unusual interest. Several new features will come off during this hour. One of these features will be an address by Hugh Newman of Pittsburgh. Mr. Newman is one of the enterprising business men of Pittsburgh. He is a forceful speaker and has a magnetic personality. Come and hear him and also learn what a fine school we have. Another feature of the Bible school hour is that it is Mary B. Dick Class Day. They have something of unusual interest for you. The subject of the morning sermon is "Where Did Jesus Get His Stories?" This sermon will give you a new view point. 7:45, evening worship. The sermon is about another night experience of the Bible, "Jacob Wrestling With God," is the subject.

TRINITY LUTHERAN—Fairview avenue. Rev. Wm. H. Hedrick, D. D., pastor. Sunday School 10 A. M. Morning Worship 11 A. M. Sermon "The Obligation to Live for Christ." Not to be a Christian is sin and eternal guilt. Why? Luther League 7:00 P. M., topic, "What My Denomination Has Meant for the World." Louise Hetzel, leader. Evening worship 7:45, sermon, "How to Tell Whether You Are Lost." There is one sure way of knowing this. Dr. Hedrick will explain it Sunday night.

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH. J. E. Dorman, pastor. Sunday School 9:45—Worship 11 A. M. and 7:45 P. M. Subject of morning sermon, "God's Bounty and Our Responsibility." Evening subject, "The Christian Secret of a Happy Life."

CHURCH OF THE BRETHRENS. Crawford avenue, West Side. J. A. Buffenmyer, pastor. Sunday School 9:45 A. Topic, (same for both), "What My Denomination Has Meant for the World." Senior leader, Helen Hyatt. Intermediate leader, Helen Korns. Morning worship and sermon at 10:10; subject of sermon, "The Use of the Thing in Hand." Evening worship and sermon at 7:30; subject of sermon, "The Divine Right to Be Well-Born," a sermon with definite points of interest to young and old. The right to noble birth is universally recognized, and universally ignored. It is the rule of the race to fight for our rights, but this is an instance in which we cannot fight for ourselves. The battle for us, in this respect, was fought, and won for us by others; and we in turn must wage warfare for the generations yet unborn. A profitable evening is promised to anyone interested in eugenics.

FIRST BAPTIST—E. H. Stevens, minister. Bible school, 9:15. Lesson story, "What the Bible Says About a Woman, and the Secret of Her Great Life." Morning, 11. Subject of sermon, "What's Right With the Church?" Is anything right with the church? So many folks who don't know have said so much about "What's Wrong With the Church," it's refreshing when a newspaper man, after six months' study of the church, writes on the other side of the subject, "What's Right With the Church." What do you know about it? B. Y. P. U. 6:15. Topic, "Missionary Meeting." Leader, Mrs. E. H. Stevens. Evening service. The special music will be given by the 22-piece orchestra of the United Brethren Church of Scotland. They will be assisted by a male quartet. This is a night with good music.

The scholars of the Sunday school are requested to attend this service; Junior C. E., 3 P. M.; Intermediate C. E., 6 P. M.; leader, Albert McCormick; Senior C. E., 6:45 P. M. Topic, "What My Denomination Has Meant for the World." leader, Miss Jessie Brooks. Special music will be rendered at each C. E. meeting in the evening at 7:30 the pastor's theme will be "What Should We Do With Jesus?" Prayer meeting on Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN—J. L. Prosser, pastor; W. E. Russell, assistant. Sunday school, 9:45; morning service, 11; evening service, 7:30. Wednesday evening player-meeting, 7:45. Subject of morning sermon, "The Faith of Four." Four men believed a thing could be done—a hard, impossible thing, an unreasonable thing—and it was done. Their part in the thing was ridiculous, ignoring conventions, not fearing to be laughed at. Faith fears nothing, stops at nothing, conquers everything, gets all things. All things are possible to the one who believes. Multiply that one by four, and what will be the result?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE—Dunbar. Pained building. Church services and Sunday school, 10:45 o'clock. Subject of lesson sermon, "Probation After Death." Reading room open week days from 2 to 4 o'clock.

UNITED BRETHRENS—Announcement. B. E. Ormiston, pastor. Fairview—Sunday School at 10 A. M. Mt. Olive—Preaching service at 11 A. M. Moore Memorial—Preaching service at 7:30 P. M. Everybody welcome.

UNITED BRETHRENS—E. A. Sharp, minister. The increase in the Sunday school attendance indicates that a keener interest is being taken in this department of the church activities, and all are urged to be present on Sunday at 9:45 A. M. Worship with sermon by the pastor at 11 A. M. Sermon subject, "Why Be a Member of the Church?" Junior C. E. at 2 P. M. Senior C. E. at 6:30 P. M. at which time plans will be completed at 7:30 o'clock. Sermon by the pastor on "Distant Souls."

STAR JUNCTION AND FAIRVIEW METHODIST EPISCOPAL—J. A. Forster, pastor. Star Junction—Sunday School 10 A. M. Morning worship 11 A. M. Evening service 7:30 P. M. Mid-week service, Thursday, 7:30 P. M. Fairview—Tippencanoe, Pa. Sunday School and public worship 2:30 P. M. Come to our church, or go to your church, but be at some church next Sunday.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL—B. W. Hutchinson, minister. Boys' Sunday observed. The pastor's subject at 11 A. M. will be "How Much Is Your Boy Worth?" Sunday school at 9:45 sharp. Red and Blue contest, be on time. The month's classes meet in the Y. M. C. A. The Intermediate League and Epworth League at 6:30 P. M. The evening worship at 7:30. The pastor will discuss the following from the "Question Box": Why are laws enacted against the sale of narcotics to minors? What is a deaconess? and would you advise a young woman to enter on such work? Who or what is Satan or the devil? Is he not a myth? Did the serpent really talk to Eve in the Garden of Eden? Do not the creeds and the conditions of church membership keep many good men out of the church? The services are held in the Frances Cameron school hall, corner South Pittsburgh and Fairview avenue.

Subject, "Modern Portals." 8:00, teachers' training class.

SUMMIT METHODIST PROTESTANT—J. H. Lamberton, supply pastor. Sunday school, 2 P. M.; preaching at 3:15 P. M.; Senior C. E. meeting at 7 P. M. Regular Thursday evening prayer and praise service at 7:30 o'clock.

Toasted Baskets.

My children will eat many vegetables, which they would not otherwise touch, if I serve them in little baskets made of rolls. I hollow out the center of the roll, making a handle of a strip of the crust. The baskets are filled with creamed asparagus, carrots, or baked squash. When filled they are set under the oven gas and lightly toasted.

Eight Girls in Firemen's Contest

Eight girls entered the popularity contest of the South Conneltsville Fire Department at a meeting of the committee to charge, held last evening. Evidence that some of them have been busy laying "the groundwork" is found in the number of votes at a penny each, secured.

Miss Lavonia L. Miller is in the lead with 1,700. Others and their votes are: Kathryn Koffer, 728; Lola Keller, 150; Mary E. Helms, 85; Nellie Peden, 762; Esther Brown, 246; Hazel Shirov, 457; Ruth Baker, 70.

The contest will come to a close on the night of June 16, the final night of a three-day festival. At the present time there is a large gap between the first and second places but it is expected by next Friday night that the present standing will be somewhat changed. The prize for the first position will be a diamond ring, second place will be a diamond pin and third place a $20 gold piece. One cent is equal to a vote, and persons desiring to cast votes for their candidates can do so at the fire station.

BACK AGED TERRIBLY

Mrs. Robinson Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Amarillo, Texas.—"My back was my greatest trouble. It would ache so that it would almost kill me and I would have cramps. I suffered in this way about three years; then a lady friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had better health since, keep house and am able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends as it has certainly given me great relief."—Mrs. C. B. Robinson, 905 N. Lincoln St., Amarillo, Tex.

The Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for women. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful times, irregularity, tired and worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. Robinson writes as well as by one woman telling another. These women know what it did for them. It is surely worth your trial.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

High School Athletes Will Now Enter Final Weeks of Training for Field Meet Coker Athletes Will Take Part In Such Events for First Time.

MAY TAKE SOME PLACES

With just two more weeks remaining until the track meet of the Fayette County Intercollegiate Athletic Association, of which organization the Connelville High School is a member, local athletes will enter on the semi-final period of training Monday.

The track team and candidates entered in other events have progressed wonderfully during the past week, mainly due to the fine weather prevailing, which permitted continuous outdoor practice.

The sprinters and distance men have about overcome their sore muscles and exhibit far greater endurance. The others, including pole vaulting, the jumps and shot put, also are becoming smooth in their work-outs.

With rosters and participants from every high school in the county at the field meet on May 12, Dawson Fair Grounds will be a lively place. The various colors of the schools will make the track an attractive center.

British Olympic Plans

Each town of 5,000 population has been asked to contribute at least £10 to the fund. So far London has subscribed £3,000.

Paul Sentelle,

National League Umpire, Succumbs

CINCINNATI, April 23.—Paul Sentelle, National League umpire, died in a hospital here last night from the effects of an aggravated attack of appendicitis. Sentelle was 45 years old and lived in New Orleans. His wife was at his bedside when he died.

Sentelle was operated on here last Sunday by Dr. H. H. Hines, physician of the Cincinnati National League club. It was found the patient had suffered from a ruptured appendix, which made his condition precarious. He rallied after the operation and appeared to be recovering until yesterday.

Crawford Boulevard, West Side, Connelville, Penna.

When she awakened the room was bright with sunlight. She was lying and dreamily contemplating the mud walls of this little room when she remembered where she was and how she had come there.

How great a shock she had been subjected to was manifest in a sensation of dizziness that overwhelmed her. She even shut her eyes to try and blot out the recollection. She felt that she had been contaminated.

Presently Madeline Hammond again awoke to the fact she had learned the preceding night—that there were emotions to which she had hitherto been a stranger. She scarcely remembered when she had found it necessary to control her emotions. There had been no trouble, no excitement, no unpleasantness in her life. It had been ordered for her—tranquil, luxurious, brilliant, varied, yet always the same.

Then Madeline heard Florence rap on the door and call softly:

"Miss Hammond. Are you awake?"

"Awoke and dressed, Miss Kingsley."

Presently there was slow, reluctant steps outside the front door, then a pause, and the door opened. Stewart stood baredheaded in the sunlight. Madeline's glance ran over him swiftly as lightning. But as she saw his face now she did not recognize it. The man's presence caused her a recoil. Yet something in her, the imperceptible side of her nature, thrilled in the look of this splendid dark-faced barbarian.

"Mr. Stewart, will you please come in?" she asked, after that long pause.

"I reckon not," he said. The dolefulness of his look meant that he knew he was not fit to enter a room with her, and did not care or care too much.

Madeline went to the door. The man's face was laid, yet it was sad, too. And it touched her.

"I shall not tell my brother of your rudeness to me," she began. It was impossible for her to keep the chill out of her voice, to speak with other than the pride and aloofness of her class. Nevertheless, despite her lengthening, when she had spoken so far it seemed that kindness and pity followed. She remembered how that pet name had sounded from the lips of this brother who had given it to her.

"Alfred!"

"Dear old girl," he said, "you haven't changed at all, except to grow lover. Only you're a woman now, and you've fulfilled the name I gave you. —Oh! how right of you brings back home! It seems a hundred years since I left. I would you more than all the rest."

Madeline seemed to feel with his every word that she was remembering him. She was so amazed at the change in him that she could not believe her eyes. She saw a broad, strong-jawed, eagle-eyed man, stalwart, superb of height, and, like the cowboys, belted, booted, spurred. She had bidden good-by to a disgraced, disheveled, dissolute boy. Well she remembered the handsome pale face with its weakness and shadows and careless smile, with the over-pressed cigarette hanging between the lips. The years had passed, and now she saw him a man—the West had made him a man. And Madeline Hammond felt a strong, pulsating gladness and gratefulness, and a direct check to her sudden inspired hatred of the West.

"Madesty, it was good of you to come. I'm all broken up. How did you ever do it?" But never mind that now. Tell me about that brother of mine."

And Madeline told him, and then about their sister Helen. Question after question he fired at her; and she told him of her mother, of Aunt Grace, who had died a year ago; of his old friends, married, widowed, vanished. But she did not tell him of his father, for he did not ask.

Quite suddenly the rapid-fire questioning ceased; he choked, was silent a moment, and then burst into tears. He seemed to her the West, stored up bitterness was flooding away. It hurt her to see him—hurt her more to hear him. And in the succeeding few moments she grew closer to him than she had ever been in the past. Had her father and mother done right by him? Her pulse stirred with unwonted quickness. She did not speak, but she listened him, which, for her, was an indication of unusual feeling. And when he recovered himself over his emotions he made no reference to his breakdown, nor did she. But that same struck deep into Madeline Hammond's heart. Through it she saw what he had lost and gained.

"Alfred, why did you not answer my last letter?" asked Madeline. "I had not heard from you for two years."

"So long? How time flies! Well, I went west with me about the last time I heard from you. I always intended to write some day, but I never did. You remember all about my little ranch, and that for a while I did well raising stock? I wrote you all that. Madesty, a man makes one unless you write. Perhaps an eastern man in the West can make it, but so many, so many more bitter ones. At any rate, I made a mistake. I was a gentleman, Ward by name—his game non—and he and I had trouble over cattle. That gave me a backset. But have the sheriff here, has been imprudent in hunting my business. He's not so much of a teacher, but he has influence at Santa Fe and El Paso and Douglas. I made an enemy of him. I never did anything to him. The real reason for his animosity toward me is that he loves Florence and Florence is going to marry me."

"Alfred!"

"What's the matter, Madesty? Didn't Florence impress you favorably?" he asked, with a keen glance.

"Why—yes, indeed. I like her. But I did not think of her in relation to you—that was I am greatly surprised. Alfred, is she well born? What connections?"

"Florence is just a girl of ordinary people. She was born in Kentucky, was brought up in Texas. My aristocratic and wealthy family would scorn—"

"Alfred, you are still a Hammond," said Madeline, with uplifted head.

Alfred laughed. "We won't quarrel, Madesty. I remember you, and in spite of your pride you've got a heart. If you stay here a month you'll love Florence Kingsley. I want you to know she's had a great deal to do with straightening me up. . . . Well, to go on with my story, there's Don Carlos, a Mexican rancher, and he's my worst enemy. Don Carlos is a sly Greenhorn, he knows the ranges, he has the water, and he is dishonest. So he outfigured me. And now I am practically ruined. He has not gotten possession of my ranch, but that's only a matter of time, pending lawsuits at Santa Fe. At present I have a few hundred cattle running on Stillwell's range, and I am his for-eman."

"For-eman?" queried Madeline.

"I am simply boss of Stillwell's cowboys, and right glad of my job."

Madeline was conscious of an inward burning. It required an effort for her to retain her outward tranquillity.

"Cannot your property be reclaimed?" she asked. "How much do you owe?"

"Ten thousand dollars would clear me and give me another start. But, Madesty, in this country that's a good deal of money, and I haven't been able to raise it. Stillwell's in worse shape than I am."

Madeline went over to Alfred and put her hands on his shoulders.

"We must not be in debt."

He stared at her as if her words had recalled something long forgotten. Then he smiled.

"How impetuous you are! I'd forgotten just who my beautiful sister really is. Mr. Stewart, you're not going to ask me to turn money from you?"

"I am."

"Well, I'll not do it. I never did, even when I was in college, and then there wasn't much beyond me."

"Listen, Alfred," she went on, earnestly. "This is entirely different. I had only an allowance then. You had no way to know that since I last wrote you I had come into my inheritance from Aunt Grace. It was well, that doesn't matter. Only, I haven't been able to spend half the income. It's mine. It's not father's money. You will make me very happy if you'll consent. What is ten thousand dollars to me? Sometimes I spend that in a month. I throw money away. If you let me help you it will be doing me good as well as you, please, Alfred."

"You always were the best of fellows, Madesty. And if you really care—if you really want to help me I'll be only too glad to accept. It will be fine. Florence will go wild. And that Greener won't harm me any more. Madesty, pretty soon some titled fellow will be spending your money; I may as well take a little before he gets it all," he finished, jokingly.

"What do you know about me?" she asked, lightly.

"More than you think. Even if we are lost out here in the wootly West we get news. Everybody knows about Anglesbury. And that Dago duke who chased you all over Europe, that Lord Chastleton has the running now and seems about to win. How about it, Madesty?"

Madeline detected a hint that suggested scorn in his gay speech. And deep in his searching glance she saw a flame. She became thoughtful. She had forgotten Chastleton, New York, society.

"Alfred," she began seriously, "I don't believe any titled gentleman will ever spend my money, as you elegantly express it."

"I don't care for that. It's you," he cried, passionately, and he grasped her with a violence that startled her. He was white, his eyes were now like fire. "You are a splendid—so wonderful. People called you the American Beauty, but you're more than that. You're the American Girl. Madesty, marry me and you will love him and love an American. Stay, any day from Europe long enough to learn to know the men—the real men of your own country."

"Alfred, I'm afraid there are not always real men and real love for American girls in international marriages. Alfred, tell me how you came to know about me. Was out there? You may be married. I was astonished to find that Miss Kingsley knew me as Madesty Hammond."

loved involuntarily. "I choose to overlook what you did because you were not wholly accountable, and because there must be no trouble between Alfred and you. May I tell you to keep silence and to let the lips of that priest? You will spare me further distress, will you not, please?"

His hoarse reply was incoherent, but she needed only to see his working face to know his remorse and gratitude.

Madeline went back to her room; and presently Florence came for her, and directly they were sitting at breakfast. Madeline Hammond's impression of her brother's friend had to be reconstructed in the morning light. She felt a wholesome, frank, sweet nature. She liked the slow southern drawl. And she was puzzled to know whether Florence Kingsley was pretty, or striking or unusual. She had a youthful glow and flush, the clear tan of outdoors, a face that lacked the soft curves and lines of eastern women, and her eyes were light gray, like crystal, steady, almost piercing, and her hair was a beautiful bright auburn mass.

A sharp knock on the parlor door interrupted conversation. Florence's sister went to open it. She returned presently and said:

"It's Gene. He's been dawdling out there on the front porch, and he knocked to let us know Miss Hammond's brother is coming."

Florence hurried into the parlor, followed by Madeline. The door stood open, and disclosed Stewart sitting on the porch steps. From down the road came a clatter of hoofs. Madeline looked out over Florence's shoulder and saw a cloud of dust approaching and in it she distinguished outlines of horses and riders. A warmth spread over her, a little pulse of gladness, and the feeling recalled her girl's love for her brother. What would he be like after long years?

Looking out, Madeline saw a bunch of dusty, wiry horses pawing the gravel and tossing their heads. Her swift glance ran over the like horses, some, trying to pick

Railroads Join In Effort To Better Meet Increasing Needs of Transportation

Adopt a Coordinated Policy and Intensive Working Plan For Future.

OVER BILLION DOLLARS

Either Expended or Authorized Since January, 1922, for Cars, Locomotives, Trackage, Equipment or Facilities for Handling Traffic.

Anticipating the greatest volume of freight traffic this year in their history, the railroads at recent meetings in New York of the American Railway Association and the Association of Railway Executives, adopted a coordinated policy and intensive work- ing program to enable the carriers to meet the growing transportation needs of the country.

This program was set out in res- olutions based on recommendations submitted in a report of the car ser- vice division of the American Rail- way Association. Despite the ob- stacles placed in the way of transpor- tation services since July 1, 1922 by the accumulative effects of the coal miners' and shopmen's strikes, the railroads have between July 1, 1922 and the present date, handled the greatest volume of traffic ever trans- ported during any corresponding period in the history of the country.

Realizing the necessity for the greatest improvement and expansion possible of the country's transpor- tation facilities to meet the growing demands of commerce, the railroads now have on order more cars and locomotives than ever before in their history. In 1922 they actually ex- pended $140,000,000 for cars, locomotives, trackage and other facilities, while they have authorized expendi- tures for equipment and other facil- ities amounting to approximately $1,100,000,000 for the year 1923. This means that the railroads since Jan- uary 1, 1922 have either expended or authorized the expenditure of a total of $1,540,000,000. This enormous amount of additional capital is largely being raised by the railroads through borrowing money on the abiding faith in the firmness of the American people and reliance on the continuance of the constructive policy hitherto announ- ced by the Congress.

Under the program adopted by the carriers it is proposed:

- 1.—To reduce to five per cent of the total equipment of the country, the number of cars awaiting repairs on October 1, 1923.
- 2.—To reduce, for the country as a whole, the number of locomotives awaiting heavy repairs to 15 per cent by October 1, 1923.
- 3.—To complete coal storage re- quirements of the railroads by Sep- tember 1 so that thereafter equipment and other transportation facilities may be used to the greatest extent for commercial coal transportation.
- 4.—To increase the loading of all cars to maximum capacity in an effort to bring the average loading to 30 tons per car for the entire country.
- 5.—To increase the mileage per car per day to an average of 30 for the entire country.
- 6.—To restrict to a minimum the use of power and equipment for rail- road construction and maintenance purposes after September 1.
- 7.—To improve upon all interested the necessity for early movement of coal and ore via the lakes in the largest possible quantity.
- 8.—To bring about the prosecution of road and construction work as early in the season as possible in or- der that equipment may be available for the larger movement of seasonal commodities.

The freight car repair program is to be prosecuted with a view of con- ditioning for grain and grain products movement, which showed a particu- larly noticeable increase last year, the largest possible number of box cars and extraordinary measures are also to be taken to reduce the number of refrigerator cars awaiting repairs to the lowest possible limit.

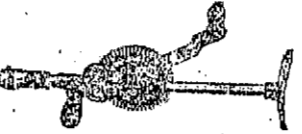

The day is sometimes distinguished from other poems by the fact that it presents a picture; it is always dis- tinguished from the major types of poetry by the fact that it presents the qualities of one or another of them, in a reduced and exquisitely delicate replica. Such pastels as the Book of Ruth, Spenser's Shepherd's Calen- dar, and all the rural lyrics of Theoc- ritus are little paintings, like the genre pictures of the Dutch school. The day may deal also with domestic, or social, even heroic, themes. The first kind is well represented by the Hebrew Book of Tobit or Burns' Cotter's Sat- urday Night. The second kind may be of city or of court; it has been cul- tivated with great success by the Greeks and the French. The heroic kind is represented by the Book of Esther and by Tennyson's Idylls of the King. The Idylls of the King are an epic in a rose-washed, courtly, romantic atmos- phere, scenes, images, and words—in- stilled with translucent color.—Q. M. Gayle
